IN VACATION.

They're a Great Trial.—First Lady (in village shop)—Would you mind if I made my small purchase first? We have a horse outside and he won't keep quiet.

Second Lady—Certainly; but you won't be very long, will you? I have a husband outside and he's rather restive, too.

Et al.—In a certain Western town there was at one time a justice of the peace who had been born in the Emerald Isle, and whose blunders occasioned many a smile to the better educated members of the community.

At one time a subpoena had been issued from his court to another Irishman to attend as witness in a case where John Smith was the plaintiff, and Henry Johnson et al. were the defendants.

Patrick Clancy, the desired witness, appeared in court before the trial commenced; and during an informal preliminary conversation he asked, bluntly:

"Judge, who in the world is 'et al.'?"

"Well, well, Patrick," exclaimed his honor, in evident amazement. "I must say that I am a bit surprised that an American citizen and a man of ordinary intelligence should not know the meaning of et al.! But for the benefit of the witness and any other gentlemen present that might be as ignorant as Patrick Clancy, I will explain. It is derived from two Latin words and means, in its literal and American sense, at all, at all!"—Washington Herald.
